Before Gianni and I could depart for our weekend of camping we had to go to our Grandkids School as it was Granny and Grandpa day. We had to do one session at 9am and another at 11am. The first thing Tyler said to us when we arrived was 'where is TOTO.' The school definitely did not allow dogs.

Johnny, Sandy, Greg, Jenny, Greg and Glyn had already arrived and set up by the time we arrived. The 6 of them had gone on a 10 or 11-day road trip to the Karoo and the last leg was at Watergat. Helen had also arrived after a meeting with a client in Worcester.

Next to arrive was Wayne, Dawn and Erin and Aiden.

Craig and Rina were last again but managed to arrive early for once and was able to set up camp in daylight.

The weather was awesome but as soon as the sun went down it got very chilly so fires and konkers were lit.

The 6 road trippers had bought lamb shank in Robertson before camp which Johnny cooked up in 2 potjie pots. The 3 ladies did the chopping and cutting and slicing of the veggies for the lamb shank. Greg took charge of cooking the vegetables on his Weber which I'm told was delicious. The lamb shank looked, smelled and tasted amazing and we enviously watched them as they thoroughly enjoyed their gourmet meal. Johnny put quite a bit of red wine with the lamb shank which caused the rice to have a purple colour. Greg was not too impressed by this.

Saturday was a lovely wind free day.

The road trippers continued with their gourmet cooking and made a five-star breakfast.

Wayne and family went out for lunch and Helen went to a friend in Rawsonville for a Chinese meal.

The evening was perfect except with no wind the Mossies were out in full force. A few campers attempted a Smoke dance to get rid of the Mossies as we were all being bitten.

Greg had an amazing new hairdo taking him back to his youthful days - curtesy of Rina Supplying the lovely locks.

Later in the evening Trevor gave us his usual chairman's chatter by means of his parody – the vice chairman Johnny. Trevor he impersonated you to the T, in a very good way.

Everyone took turns to braai their dinner – no gourmet meals that night but we got Malva and Chocolate pudding with custard. I always love dessert and it was so yummy. Thank you to those who supplied the desserts for all of us.

Sunday was another lovely day but soon after breakfast we all started packing up and headed for home. The road trippers were missing their families back home and others had lots of washing to do before work on Monday.

Thanks everyone for a lovely weekend – till next time
